- [2] The Convict is now 21 years old and has no dependent. At the time of commission of these offences he was between 17 and 20 years old and lived with his grandparents. He has been co-operative with the investigations. He has pleaded guilty. Learned counsel for the Convict submitted that the Convict does realize that what he was involved in was bad and is very remorseful. He pleads for leniency and the mercy of the Court.

[3] I have considered the mitigating factors put forth by learned counsel for the convict. I recognise, amongst other aspects particular to the Convict that he is young and a chance for him to lead an honest and fruitful life lies ahead of him. He has not wasted the Court's time by pleading guilty and expressed his remorse.

[4] On the other hand I note that the Convict is serving a sentence for similar offences committed during the same period that the current offences were committed. I also must take into account that the persons affected were minors albeit above the age of 15. It was not just one child but several children as the charges reflect. These children needed the protection of society and not exploitation for self-gratification or for enrichment by immoral and irresponsible adults.

[5] The law.

Section 152 provides:

152. (1) A person who-

(a) for the purposes or by way of trade or for the purpose of public exhibition or distribution to the public, makes, purchases, hires or has in the person's possession any indecent material;

(aa) makes, takes or has in the person's possession without a reasonable excuse an indecent photograph, sketch, drawing or picture of a child;

(b) for the purposes or by way of trade or for the purpose of public exhibition or distribution to the public conveys, exports or imports, causes to be conveyed, exported or imported or puts in circulation any indecent material;

(c) deals in indecent material or carries on or takes part in any business concerned with the making, producing, hiring, distribution to the public, export, import, public exhibition or circulation of any indecent material;

(d) advertises or makes known by any means whatsoever with a view to assist in the distribution or circulation of or traffic in any indecent material;

(e) publicly sells or exposes for sale any indecent material;

(f) exposes to view in a public place any indecent material;

(ff) willfully or negligently exhibits to a child any indecent material;

(g) publicly exhibits, appears, performs or takes part in or assist in any capacity with the public exhibition of any indecent show, entertainment or representation or any show, entertainment or representation tending to corrupt morals,

(h) publishes an indecent material,

is guilty of an offence and liable to imprisonment for five years.

[6] Section 284 provides:

284. Any person who, with intent to extort or gain anything from any person, and knowing the contents of the writing, causes any person to receive any writing demanding anything from any person without reasonable or probable cause, and containing threats of any injury or detriment of any kind to be caused to any person, either by the offender or any other person, if the demand is not complied with, is guilty of a felony, and is liable to imprisonment for eighteen years.

[7] Section 3(1) of Prohibition of Trafficking in Persons Act provides:

3(1) A person who recruits, transports, transfers, harbours or receives another person by any of the following means;-

(a) Threat;

(b) Use of force;

(c) Abduction;

(d) Fraud;

(e) Deception; including any misrepresentation by words or financial incentive or promise of reward or gain and other conditions of work;

(f) Abuse of power or of another person's position of vulnerability; or

(g) Giving or receiving of payments or benefits knowingly or intentionally, to achieve the consent of a person having control over another person,

For the purpose of exploitation, commits the offence of trafficking in persons and shall on conviction be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 14 years, or such imprisonment and a fine not exceeding SCR500,000.

[8] Section 4(1) of Prohibition of Trafficking in Persons Act provides:

4(1) A person who recruits, harbours, transfers, receives a child, knowingly or recklessly disregarding that the person is a child, for the purposes of exploitation, whether or not by use of any means referred to in section 3(1)(a) to (g) commits the offence of child trafficking and shall on conviction be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 25 years or such imprisonment and a fine not exceeding SCR800,000.

[9] I have given careful consideration to the mitigating factors and also consider the seriousness of the offences. Offences committed against minor children are looked upon as especially serious. I keep in mind that in imposing sentences the Court should not only consider punishment and retribution but also allowing the convict the opportunity to return to society as a responsible citizen and reformed character.

[10] I therefore impose the following sentences on the convict:

Causing any person with the intent to extort, receive any writing demanding anything from one person without reasonable excuse or probable cause and containing threats or any injury or detriment of any kind if the demand is not complied with contrary to Section 284 of the Penal Code and punishable under the same Section.
